Volume 20

NEW RULES PROPOSED

The North Carolina Real Estate Commission, pursuant to authority vested in it by the General Statutes of North Carolina, proposes to adopt and amend certain rules contained in Title 21, Chapter 58 of the North Carolina Administrative Code, to be effective May 1, 1990.

The following is a summary of some of the major provisions of the proposed rules. Copies containing the complete text of all proposed rules will be available at the hearing or can be obtained from the Commission office prior to the hearing.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS AND SALESMEN

The Commission proposes to amend Rule A .0106 to permit brokers and salesmen to furnish property owners periodic reports concerning the status of their property rather than providing the owners a copy of each lease or rental agreement. The reports must be furnished within 45 days following execution of the lease or rental agreement, and authorization to furnish the reports in lieu of the leases or rental agreements is subject to several terms and conditions.

The Commission proposes to amend Rule A .0107(h) to permit brokers to transfer earnest money deposits to closing attorneys within 10 days prior to settlement.

The Commission proposes to amend Rule A .0502 to require principal brokers of real estate brokerage corporations to designate and assure that there is at all times a broker-in-charge for each office of the corporation, and to perform certain other administrative duties on behalf of the corporate broker.

REAL ESTATE AND APPRAISAL EDUCATION

Schools

The Commission proposes to amend those rules regarding the approval of schools (other than private real estate schools) to conduct real estate pre-licensing courses so that the rules will also apply to appraiser pre-licensing and pre-certification courses.

The Commission proposes to amend that rule governing the use of examination performance data to require schools to state that the data was provided by the Real Estate Commission.

Private Real Estate Schools

The Commission proposes to amend those rules regarding the licensure of private real estate schools to conduct real estate pre-licensing courses so that the rules will also apply to private schools offering appraiser pre-licensing and pre-certification courses.

The Commission proposes to amend those rules which establish the application and renewal fees for private real estate school licenses to reduce the application fee for an original private real estate school license to $200 (now $250) per school location but charge a fee of $40 for the approval of each course; and to charge a fee of $20 for the annual renewal of each course in addition to the $100 license renewal fee for the school.

The Commission proposes to amend that rule governing the use of examination performance data by private real estate schools to require the school to state that the data was provided by the Real Estate Commission.

Pre-Licensing and Pre-Certification Courses

The Commission proposes to amend those rules establishing minimum standards for real estate pre-licensing courses so that the rules will also apply to appraiser pre-licensing and pre-certification courses.

The Commission proposes to amend that rule regarding program structuring to require the completion of minimum 30 classroom hour courses in "Introduction to Real Estate Appraisal," "Valuation Principles and Procedures," and "Applied Residential Property Valuation" as a prerequisite to sitting for the pre-licensing (residential appraiser) examination; and the completion of additional minimum 30 classroom hour courses in "Introduction to Income Property Appraisal," "Advanced Income Capitalization Procedures," and "Applied Income Property Valuation" as a prerequisite to sitting for the pre-certification (general appraiser) examination. All courses must be taken sequentially in the order listed.

The Commission proposes to adopt a rule requiring, as a prerequisite to the approval of appraiser pre-licensing and pre-certification courses, that instructors of pre-licensing (residential appraiser) courses have completed at least 90 classroom hours of real estate appraisal education and two years' full-time experience as a residential real estate appraiser within the previous three years; and that instructors of pre-certification (general appraiser) courses have completed at least 180 classroom hours of appraisal education and five years' full-time experience as a general real estate appraiser within the previous seven years, of which at least 50% of such experience must be in income property appraising.

Appraisal Trade Organization Courses

The Commission proposes to adopt rules establishing procedures by which appraisal trade organizations may seek recognition of their courses as being equivalent to Commission-approved appraisal courses, including the assessment of a $250 fee to evaluate each course for recognition purposes and a $125 annual fee for renewal of such recognition.

The Commission proposes to adopt rules setting forth criteria for recognition of appraisal trade organization courses which are generally the same as for appraisal pre-licensing and pre-certification courses except that (1) the organization must also have satisfactory policies relating to classroom facilities, course cancellation and tuition refund, and (2) the organizations are not subject to the program structuring and course scheduling restrictions that are applicable to approved schools. Such organizations may advertise that such courses are "recognized" as being equivalent to Commission-approved courses, but are prohibited from referring to such courses as being "approved" pre-licensing or pre-certification courses.

REAL ESTATE APPRAISERS

Application for Appraiser License or Certificate

The Commission proposes to adopt rules prescribing the form for use in applying for an appraiser license or certificate, and establishing a $100 fee for applying for an appraiser license or certificate which shall include one examination.

PROPOSED RULES

regarding the licensing and certification of real estate appraisers which shall require State-licensed and State-certified appraisers to renew their licenses and certificates on an annual basis by the filing of the prescribed form, payment of a $75 renewal fee, and completion of at least 10 classroom hours of Commission-approved instruction during the previous year.

Persons may reinstate their expired licenses and certificates within 12 months following expiration by making application and paying a late filing fee of $10 per month for each month that the license or certificate is lapsed; however, if the license or certificate is expired for more than 12 months, then the person must file a new application and fee, pay the accrued $120 late fee, and complete continuing education equivalent to that which would have been required had the license been continually renewed, in order to apply for reinstatement of the appraiser license or certificate.

The Commission proposes to adopt a rule permitting State-licensed and State-certified real estate appraisers to place their licenses and certificates on Inactive Status; however, to renew a license or certificate which is on Inactive Status, the regular renewal fee must be paid, and the licensee or certificate holder must satisfy all continuing education requirements each year.

Appraiser Examinations

The Commission proposes to adopt rules regarding appraiser examinations including the time and place of examinations, re-examinations, conduct at the examinations, and related matters. Such proposed rules also provide for the review of examinations by persons who fail their examinations, and generally describe the content of appraiser examinations as follows:

State-licensed (residential appraiser) examinations will test applicants on: basic real property law; concepts of value; forces affecting real estate values; residential real estate financing; residential construction and design; the appraisal process; valuation principles and procedures; application of valuation principles and procedures to the valuation of various types of residential properties and to related appraisal assignments; standards of appraisal practice; the North Carolina Real Estate Appraisers Act and related Commission rules; and related subject areas.

State-certified (general appraiser) examinations will test applicants on the subject areas listed in the previous paragraph and the additional areas of: income capitalization principles and procedures; application of valuation principles and procedures to the valuation of all types of income-producing and other properties and to related appraisal assignments; and related subject areas.

General Appraisal Practice

The Commission proposes to adopt rules governing the practice of State-licensed and State-certified real estate appraisers, including the requirement that State-licensed real estate appraisers identify themselves in advertising and otherwise as "State-licensed residential real estate appraisers," and State-certified appraisers identify themselves as either "State-certified general real estate appraisers" or "State-certified residential/general real estate appraisers."

The Commission proposes to adopt rules regarding use of the term "certified" when referring to appraisals performed by State-certified appraisers, and requiring that all written appraisal reports prepared by State-licensed or State-certified real estate appraisers bear the signature, seal, and license or certification status of the appraiser, and identify any other person(s) who assist in the appraisal process (other than by providing clerical assistance).

The Commission proposes to adopt a rule requiring each appraisal firm or combined brokerage/appraisal firm with two or more

State-licensed or State-certified appraisers or any unlicensed or uncertified assistants to designate a "managing appraiser" to perform certain administrative functions and to maintain a record of the activities of the unlicensed or uncertified assistants and the activities of any State-licensed appraiser who assists a State-certified appraiser in performing an appraisal.

The Commission proposes to adopt rules requiring State-licensed or State-certified appraisers to actively and personally supervise unlicensed and uncertified assistants and requiring State-certified appraisers to supervise State-licensed appraisers who assist in performing appraisals. Such supervision is to include preparing and furnishing the managing appraiser and the person being supervised a report describing the nature and extent of assistance rendered.

Standards of Appraisal Practice

The Commission proposes to adopt a rule requiring State-licensed and State-certified real estate appraisers to comply with Standards 1 and 2 of the Appraisal Foundation's "Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice" when performing real estate appraisals. □

Any person interested in the Commission's proposals may present oral or written comments at a public rulemaking hearing to be held at 9:00 a.m. on February 15, 1990 at the North Raleigh Hilton, 3415 Wake Forest Road, Raleigh, North Carolina. Written comments not presented at the hearing should be delivered by the bearing date to the North Carolina Real Estate Commission Office, 1313 Navaho Drive, P.O. Box 17100, Raleigh, North Carolina 27619-7100.

This the 24th day of January, 1990.

DISPLAY OF LICENSES

The question has arisen and come to the attention of the Real Estate Commission as to where real estate license certificates should be displayed in real estate offices. With the prevailing trend towards larger real estate firms with numerous associates, the traditional method of displaying real estate licenses in the lobby or reception area of the office has sometimes proven impractical. The problem is then compounded by the popular "bullpen" arrangement in many offices where brokers and salesmen share an open area and do not have private offices to meet with clients and customers.

Commission Rule A .0101 requires that "The license of a Broker-In-Charge and the license of each broker and salesman engaged in real estate activities at the office of the Broker-In-Charge shall be prominently displayed (emphasis added) at such office." The intent of this rule is to provide a means for giving notice to the public, specifically real estate consumers, that the broker, salesman or corporation is properly licensed to engage in the business of real estate brokerage. It is, therefore, incumbent upon the licensee to display his or her license certificate in a location in the real estate office which is visibly accessible to clients and customers.

The preferable location would continue to be the lobby or reception area of the office through which all patrons normally pass. However, if this area is not suitable for the display of licenses (e.g., its size cannot accommodate the licenses of all agents working in the office), then alternative locations might include the agent's office or a conference or meeting room if this is where the agent meets the public and transacts brokerage business.

Agents are also reminded to retain their annual license renewal pocket card issued by the Commission. Since this is actually the only evidence that licensees have and can present to others to prove that they are, in fact, currently licensed, it is suggested that the card be carried by agents at all times when conducting real estate brokerage business. Furthermore, it is the responsibility of the Broker-In-Charge to provide for the proper display of license certificates and to verify that each broker and salesman associated with the Broker-In-Charge's office has properly renewed his real estate license. □

COOPERATING WITH OTHER AGENTS

By
Anita R. Burt
Consumer Protection Officer

Recently a "would-be seller" came to the Commission office to discuss an unfortunate situation which occurred while his property was listed for sale. He stated that he had entered into a listing agreement to sell his home and he assumed that the listing broker would cooperate with all other licensed brokers in the area. This home was located in an area where there was no Multiple Listing Service, and the actual listing contract was silent on the matter of cooperation with other brokers. At some point while the house was listed, a broker from another company in town told the seller that he knew of someone who might be interested in buying the seller's house, but that he would not prepare an offer because the listing broker would not cooperate (and share commissions) with him.

The seller complained to the Real Estate Commission that he had been harmed because of his listing broker's failure to cooperate with the broker who could have produced a buyer. And he was particularly angry that the listing broker had not disclosed to him at the time of listing that there was one real estate company in town with whom he refused to cooperate. The seller maintained that, had he known that the listing broker did not cooperate fully with all other licensed brokers, he would not have listed his house with him.

Although there is nothing in the Real Estate License Law that requires an agent to cooperate and share commissions with another broker, the Commission agrees that a listing broker's failure to disclose the limits of his willingness to cooperate with other brokers is unfair to the seller. The Commission takes the position that a listing agent should disclose to sellers the full extent of his willingness to cooperate with other brokers prior to the signing of any listing contract. Unless the specific limits of the agent's willingness to cooperate with other agents is disclosed prior to the signing of a listing contract, a seller may rightfully expect his listing agent to cooperate fully with all other agents, especially when the listing agreement bears the MLS logo. ☐

APPRAISER REPORT

By
James E. Poole, Jr.
Director of Appraiser Licensing and Certification

Since our last report in the Fall issue of the Bulletin, the members of the Real Estate Commission's Appraisal Committee, and the Commission members and staff have been very busy in formulating plans for implementing and administering the program for licensing and certifying real estate appraisers in our State.

At the Appraisal Committee's November 13-15 meeting, the Committee members discussed such topics as the scope of practice of State-licensed and State-certified real estate appraisers and appraisal examination content. The Committee began a major study to help it identify that subject matter which should be contained in pre-licensing and pre-certification real estate appraisal courses. The Committee also recommended to the Commission and the Commission approved the offering of "examination preview seminars" this Summer to assist appraisers in preparing for the licensing and certification examinations. The Committee met again on November 29-30 to discuss proposed rules for implementing the appraiser program (See pages 1 and 3 of this Bulletin).

The Commission's Executive Director, Philip T. Fisher, and I also participated in a forum sponsored by the North Carolina Association of Assessing Officers where the leadership of the Association urged its members to become State-licensed or State-certified even though they are specifically exempted from North Carolina's Real Estate Appraisers Act. Mr. Fisher and I were also in Washington, DC on November 16 to attend a meeting of the Appraisal Foundation's Appraisal Standards Advisory Council. The participants in this meeting represented the appraisal departments of various federal agencies including the Federal Housing Administration, the Veterans Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, FNMA, etc. Mr. Fisher represented the National Association of Real Estate License Law Officials.

I am pleased to report that we are currently on schedule with the development of the appraiser program. If we continue on this course, the first licensing and certification examinations will be administered beginning in October and the first appraiser licenses and certificates will be issued in January, 1991 — well before the July 1, 1991 Federal deadline. ☐

If it is not, you may complete and return the following form or telephone the Real Estate Commission's Appraiser Secretary (919/733-9580) and ask to be included on our list to receive any further information. The information will be sent to the same address shown on this Bulletin. ☐

REPORTING TAXPAYER ID NUMBERS

It has come to the attention of the Commission that real estate agents sometimes fail to correctly report to closing attorneys either their own Taxpayer Identification Numbers, or the Taxpayer Identification Numbers of their clients. This is done in an effort to avoid paying federal income taxes on the sale of real estate. These incorrect numbers are then subsequently reported to the Internal Revenue Service by the attorney or an accountant.

A broker who provides a closing attorney, accountant or others with an incorrect Taxpayer Identification Number is making a misrepresentation in violation of North Carolina General Statutes Section 93A-6(a) (1) for which disciplinary action may be imposed by the Commission. The broker may also be in violation of N.C.G.S. 93A-6(a) (8), being unworthy or incompetent to act as a real estate broker or salesman, and 93A-6(a) (10), conduct which constitutes improper, fraudulent or dishonest dealing.

To avoid potential disciplinary action by the Commission, be sure to correctly report Taxpayer Identification Numbers! ☐

SUPERVISION OF BOOKKEEPERS

An Old Familiar Tune — But the Audience Was Tone Deaf

by
L. Ted Gayle
Director of Audits and Investigations

A few months ago, a young broker whom we will call "Jim," came into my office with his attorney. Jim came to report that his unlicensed bookkeeper (whom we'll refer to as "Jane") had embezzled somewhere between ten and fifty thousand dollars from his trust accounts and from certain other accounts maintained by his company. The story of Jim and Jane is true. Only their names have been changed to protect their anonymity. Unfortunately, this story repeats itself far too often in the real estate business, so a recitation of the facts might be instructive for all brokers.

It seems that Jim first became a real estate broker in 1975. For over ten years he sold real estate for other firms but then decided he could better achieve his career goals by going into business for himself. His business consisted primarily of sales, but since he sold rental investment property, investors often wanted Jim to manage their property. He had also bought investment rental property himself which he managed. Jim's property management business grew to some eighty units including his own properties and the properties owned by fifteen other investors. Although the property management division of his company was small by most standards, it was too large and too time-consuming for him to be both the property manager and to do all the other things necessary to keep his young company going. In addition, he found that being in business for himself created additional demands on his time, and that he had to learn the new skills associated with managing an office, supervising employees, and understanding profit and loss statements and trust accounts.

Jim determined that the time had come to hire someone to collect rents, post and balance the books, reconcile bank statements, send out owner's statements, prepare 1099's, deal with landlords, tenants, and repair people, go to court to have delinquent tenants evicted, and a thousand and one other chores associated with property management. The first person he hired lasted only a few months, and each succeeding person stayed only about six months. In fact, Jim was ready to abandon the property management business altogether until he met Jane.

Jane had previously worked for several real estate management companies. Jim worked very closely with Jane for the first six months of her employment. He was very impressed with her knowledge of bookkeeping as well as her ability to deal with the public. But after a while, Jane seemed to resent Jim's looking over her shoulder. Reflecting on his experiences with previous bookkeepers who had remained with him for only a short period of time, he wondered if they may have resigned because of his close supervision. With Jane, he felt for the first time that his property management operations were in good hands, and so he decided to give her a free rein.

For nearly two years his property management division appeared to be running smoothly. Then suddenly, trust account checks began to bounce, owners complained that they were not getting their rent checks, tenants complained that they couldn't get their deposits refunded when they moved out, and Tenant Security Deposit Accounts fell below a balance of $500. Upon confronting Jane about the situation, she admitted that she had been taking rents and cash payments for tenant security deposits during the entire two-year period of her employment. Jim then contacted his attorney and employed a public accounting firm to help reconstruct his accounts to determine the actual extent of the embezzlement. The accounting firm found that Jane had made entries in the computer that accurately reflected what happened with regard to the collection and disbursement of money. But unfortunately, the bank statements did not cast the same reflections. The firm estimated that some thirty thousand dollars had been embezzled.

What are some management techniques that Jim could have implemented that might have prevented this embezzlement?

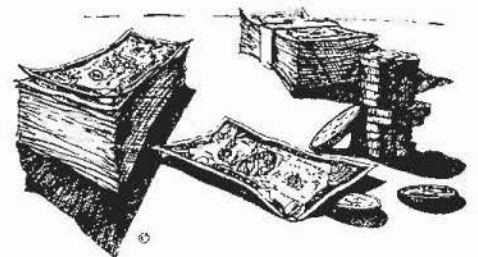

1. He should have calculated the dollar value of tenant security deposits held for his properties and the properties he managed for his fifteen investors and examined his tenant security deposit trust account bank statements each month to determine if the reconciled bank balances were in line with his calculations.
2. He should have calculated the dollar amount of rent that the eighty properties would generate each month and examined his trust account bank statements each month to determine if the deposits to those accounts coincided with his calculations.
3. He should have had Jane prepare monthly trial balances for each account, comparing the money held for others to the amount actually shown on deposit in the reconciled trust account bank statements.
4. He should have had an accounting firm prepare an audited financial statement of his property management division annually.
5. He should have set aside perhaps two months each year to personally perform an audit of the trust accounts on an unscheduled, surprise basis.
6. He should have bonded Jane. (Although this would not have prevented the embezzlement, it would have at least prevented

Jim from having to personally replace the missing funds, and it would have offered his clients a greater degree of security.)

7. And, to the extent possible, he should have divided his office and bookkeeping responsibilities between employees in order to check embezzlement opportunities such as this. (In smaller offices where you don't have the luxury of delegating certain tasks to different employees, the Broker-In-Charge must become more personally involved in verifying that trust funds are being properly accounted for, including examining bank statements each month to confirm that what should be — is.)

Perhaps most importantly, Jim should have simply exercised closer supervision over Jane. Perhaps a red flag should have been run up when Jane began to resent Jim's close scrutiny. Whenever Jim questioned Jane regarding the accuracy of her trust accounts, she would always respond that the trust accounts were accurate and in balance. She would even show him certain figures to prove her claims, but those figures proved to be fabricated. Jim had developed a 100% trust in Jane, her ability, and honesty. But because of this misplaced trust, he admitted that he did not pour over bank statements to any great degree. He is still shocked that someone would steal from him.

Jim said that his property management business generated a net profit of approximately $1,000 per year. Therefore, if his business remains the same, it will take thirty years for him to recoup the funds embezzled. He said that it is very painful to sit down and write checks to owners for past rents that had been collected by Jane but were never deposited in the bank. Jane had spent the money; but now Jim has to dig deep into his pockets to make up these deficits. □

by

The Real Estate Commission is constantly being asked whether the employees of property owners who are selling or leasing the owners' property are required to hold real estate broker or salesman licenses. Although the Real Estate License Law does, under certain limited circumstances, exempt "employees" from the licensure requirement when selling or leasing real estate owned by their employers, this exemption provision has occasionally been misinterpreted to include a wider range of situations.

For example, some persons have argued that regular, salaried employees of a person, partnership or other business entity who manage their employer's personally-owned rental properties should be exempt from licensure. However, since they are, in fact, "leasing or offering to lease" real estate for others for compensation, these employees do fall within the definition of real estate "broker" or "salesman" as set forth in the Real Estate License Law; therefore, licensure by the Real Estate Commission is mandatory.

There is, however, one exception to this requirement: A salaried employee of a corporation who, in the regular course of conducting the corporation's business, rents or sells real estate owned by the corporation, can be exempt from licensure. The Real Estate Commission has acknowledged and maintained this position for many years. However, this exception to licensure is limited only to bona fide salaried employees of a corporation. It is not extended to independent contractors associated with a corporate employer. It is, therefore, essential that employees of corporate owners of real estate clearly fall within the definition of "employee" in order to avail themselves of this exemption from licensure.

Under a traditional employer-employee relationship, the employer supplies the employees with the materials, tools, etc. necessary for the completion of the employee's work. The employer also has the right to control the manner or means by which the employee performs the work. Furthermore, the employer must:

1. compensate the employee in a manner other than on a "per transaction" basis; and
2. deduct FICA contributions from the employee's compensation; and
3. make Unemployment Insurance contributions on behalf of the employee; and
4. provide Workers Compensation Insurance for the employee; and
5. withhold Federal and State income taxes from all compensation paid to the employee.

Again, only the employees of a corporation are eligible for this exemption from licensure, and only then if they clearly fall within the definition of "employee" as described above. □

DISCIPLINARY ACTION

Penalties for violations of the Real Estate License Law and Commission Rules vary depending upon the particular facts and circumstances present in each case. Due to space limitations in the Bulletin, a complete description of such facts cannot be reported in the following Disciplinary Action summaries.

JEFFERSON C. BULLUCK (Raleigh) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Mr. Bulluck's broker's license for five years effective December 1, 1989. One year of the suspension is to be active and four years on probation on condition that he complete the Commission's Brokerage Operations and Trust Account Courses. The Commission found that Mr. Bulluck had failed to properly supervise licensed real estate salesmen in the conduct of property management services and failed to keep accurate records reflecting the activity of his trust accounts, including failing to maintain a running balance, to reconcile bank statements to check stubs, and to properly designate his accounts as "Trust Accounts." The Commission also found that Mr. Bulluck had failed to deposit all trust funds into a trust or escrow account, failed to obtain proper authorization to deposit trust funds into an interest-bearing trust account and was unable to produce all of his trust account records for inspection by the Commission. The Commission noted, however, that all shortages in the trust account had been replaced.

DONNA C. DICLEMENTE (Wilson) — The Commission revoked Ms. DiClemente's broker's license effective November 1, 1989. The Commission found that Ms. DiClemente had failed to account for and remit rents, purchase monies, and sales proceeds received on behalf of her clients.

JUDITH W. HALL (Morganton) — By Consent, the Commission reprimanded Ms. Hall for including her name, as a real estate salesman, in the name of a partnership formed for the purpose of real estate brokerage.

WALTER D. HAM (Fayetteville) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Mr. Ham's salesman's license for one year effective November 1, 1989. Two months of the suspension are to be active and one year on probation. The Commission found that Mr. Ham had acted as a salesman outside the supervision of his Broker-In-Charge and accepted compensation from a person other than the broker by whom he was employed in the management of certain rental property.

DANIEL O. HENNIGAN (Charlotte) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Mr. Hennigan's broker's license for ninety days effective December 15, 1989. The Commission then suspended its Order and placed Mr. Hennigan on probation for one year on condition that he complete the Commission's Brokerage Operations and Trust Account Courses and satisfy certain other conditions. The Commission found that Mr. Hennigan had failed within a reasonable time to remit monies to his principal, had commingled his principal's money with non-trust fund monies, and had failed to obtain proper authorization to deposit trust funds into an interest-bearing trust account.

RUSSELL L. PEARSON (Morganton) — By Consent, the Commission reprimanded Mr. Pearson for including the name of a salesman in the name of a partnership formed for the purpose of real estate brokerage.

MARIE S. PRESLER (Fayetteville) — The Commission revoked Ms. Presler's salesman's license effective October 6, 1989. The Commission found that Ms. Presler had obtained a real estate license by false or fraudulent representations in that she failed to disclose numerous judgments in her applications for licensure. The Commission also found that Ms. Presler attempted to orchestrate a wrap-around mortgage for the purpose of circumventing a due-on-sale provision in a mortgage which a purchaser wished to assume. Additionally, the Commission found that she had misrepresented to the sellers and to the first and second mortgage holders the ability of the purchaser to purchase property; that she failed within a reasonable time to account for or remit monies coming into her possession which belonged to the seller, and that she failed to immediately deliver to her Broker-In-Charge all monies which she had received in connection with the transaction.

RAMON C. RODRIGUEZ, JR. (Fayetteville) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Mr. Rodriguez' broker's license for six months effective April 1, 1990. The Commission found that Mr. Rodriguez had made misleading statements in advertisements of a company which offered to assume loan payments on distressed properties.

JACQUELYN M. WOODS (Durham) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Ms. Woods' broker's license for thirty days effective January 15, 1990. The Commission found that Ms. Woods had prepared an Offer to Purchase and Contract in a manner which did not clearly reflect the agreement of the parties.

KATHERINE C. ZUMWALT (Fayetteville) — By Consent, the Commission suspended Ms. Zumwalt's broker's license for six months effective November 1, 1989. Thirty days of the suspension are to be active and six months on probation. The Commission found that Ms. Zumwalt had failed to properly supervise a salesman in his rental management activities. □
